COLUMBUS, OHIO 43215SAINT BARNABAS CHURCH, DEAVERTOWN
MORGAN COUNTY, OHIO

St. Barnabas became St. Michael's. This is clear from an account of his visitation of the parish written by Bishop Purcell in 1841. It seems that the new church built in 1840 was dedicated by the Bishop under the title of "the archangel Michael." This clears up confusion caused by the different listings in the national Catholic Directory through the years after 1840. The little parish was given as St. Barnabas until 1843 when it was called St. Michael's. It remained St. Michael's until 1851 when it was again called St. Barnabas. It remained thus until 1870.

Bishop Purcell's account of his visit to the territory was published in the "Catholic Telegraph" of Cincinnati, Nov. 6, 1841(1). Dated "Windsor, Oct. 23, 1841," the account reads in part:

"The church at Deavertown, Morgan County, was visited on the day announced. It is a substantial brick building, 45 x 30 feet, accomodating forty families. It is under the patronage of the archangel Michael. The church is nearly at an equal distance, from 14 to 16 miles, from Zanesville and Taylorsville on the Muskingum river, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the old church and graveyard of St. Barnabas. It is under the pastoral care of Rev. Michael Aegidius Olivetti.

"Ten miles south of Deavertown on the Athens road stands the new church of the Sunday Creek congregation under the protection of the seraphic St. Francis of Assisium. It is built of stone, the front of cut stone, 65 x 25 feet, a few rods from the site of the log church which fell soon after its construction last spring at the hand of an incendiary. The church is attended by 90 families, chiefly from the three counties of Longford, Leitrim and Cavan of Ireland. The lot for the graveyard and burnt church was given by Mr. Brian Murtaugh, and that for the new church by Mr. George Thompson, a recent convert from the Church of England to the true faith.

"In these two churches [Deavertown and Sunday Creek or Chapel Hill] 84 persons were confirmed, 21 in the former and 63 in the latter. There is in both 40 or 50 Easter communicants, and 75 have taken the total abstinence pledge. In the course of the eleven months that there has been a resident pastor, there have been 20 marriages, 95 baptisms and three interments of infants. The climate is exceedingly healthy; fever and ague is unknown and there are cases of extreme old age. As an instance we may state that in the numerous family of Mr. Martin Walpole, an Irish Catholic who has been residing about five miles from St. Francis [Chapel Hill] for the last 26 years, there has been no occasion for the services of a doctor....."

Sacramental Records of St. Barnabas

Because it was one of the first Catholic missions in Ohio, records of St. Barnabas, Deavertown, give the names of some of the early Catholic pioneers of the State. However, records of baptisms only are available for the early years of the little mission. A small booklet, 7 x 8, gives the names of those baptized from 1822 to 1837. It seems to be incomplete, with some torn pages, but covers most of the period of the original log church. It is preserved at St. James', McConnellsville. There are no other books of sacramental records specific for St. Barnabas - or St. Michael's.

Father James McCaffrey, of St. Mary's, Marietta, was in charge of St. Barnabas while the new church was being built in 1840. Some few records may be included with those of that parish. At this time Father Olivetti became pastor at Chapel Hill which was in Perry county and about five miles northwest of Deavertown. An examination of the Chapel Hill records reveals quite a number of entries of names of St. Barnabas parishioners. So also, after the building of the new church there are regular entries of Deavertown baptisms in the register of St. Dominic's, McLuney, Perry county, a mission about ten miles south of Deavertown. This book is at St. Joseph's, Somerset.

Given here are the baptisms of St. Barnabas, 1822-1837, in the booklet now at St. James', McConnellsville. The date is that of the baptism.
